Neuware - Seminar paper from the year 2008 in the subject Business economics - Marketing, Corporate Communication, CRM, Market Research, printed single-sided, grade: 1,7, University of applied sciences, Neuss, course: Marketing Strategies, 11 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: Mobility is not just the fastest-growing technology in the history of mankind. With potentially four billion people being connected by mobile devices by the end of 2009, and many people having their first internet experience over a mobile device rather than a PC, mobility is changing people's lives for the better. This is a huge responsibility and test for companies in the business. But Nokia's CEO, Olli-Pekka Kallasvuo, is claiming that his company has always been good at adapting to both change and challenges.¹ This work examines how well the world largest cell phone manufacturer is prepared to maintain customer's continuous trust in their company and products; what is their strategy to continue success while changing. The work examines in three steps Nokia's strategy execution: the corporate strategy level, the business-level strategy, and the marketing strategy level. Finally, the analysis results are collectively examined in the SWOT-analysis before drawing the conclusion for which of the various generic competitive strategies Nokia is deploying. For most of Nokia's 140-year history the Finnish company was a sprawling conglomerate making toilet paper, rubber boots, wooden flooring, telephone cable, and a bunch of other unrelated products. The firm entered the telecommunication business in the 1960s when it started making radio transmission equipment, and it strengthened its position in that industry during the 1980s when it introduced the first fully digital telephone exchange in Europe and introduced the...
