DEATH AND THE GRAVE. With the death of Sherman the title of General completely disappears from our military system. It has been held by three men only. It was created in 1866 by act of Congress, and conferred upon Grant. Sherman then succeeded Grant as Lieutenant-General, and when the latter took his seat as President in March, 1869, the former became General of the Army. In 1884 Sherman was put on the retired list with the title which he held to the time of his death. In the active service the office by provision of law became vacant, and the title extinct, Sheridan being commander of the army with the rank of Lieutenant-General. In 1888, just before Sheridans death, the rank of Lieutenant-General was abolished, and that of General revived, with the understanding that Sheridan should be made General, and the express provision that the title should continue only during his life. Since that time the head of the army has been a MajorGeneral. General Shermans illness was of little more than a weeks duration. Following a taste, natural and cultivated, which he loved to gratify, the General attended the performance of Poor Jonathan, at the Casino, on Wednesday night, February 4. It was, in fact, a special performance. Invitations had been sent to the military officers of the city, and General Sherman occupied one of the proscenium boxes with a party of friends. He seemed to be in the best...
