Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Almost everyone has been touched by cancer or some form of autoimmune disease either directly, within their family, or through associates. Although much effort and expense has been put toward finding the cure, the breakthrough we have all been waiting for has yet to come. While there is an overwhelming amount of research and biotechnological development, the search for the causes of these diseases has eluded the experts. This book is an attempt by a non-expert and non-medical researcher to look at this wealth of information through a different lens, and the assessment leads to a unique set of theories and explanations on the underlying structure, functions, and causes of these illnesses. Just as the types of falling autumn leaves can be sorted and traced to their tree of origin, the many illness sites in the body can be linked to a few sources through pattern and design. Knowing the cause is key to discovering real solutions and effective prevention.
