Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Rotifera, or Wheel-Animalcules, Both British and Foreign, Vol. 1 of 2: With Illustrations Its slopes are covered with plantations of beech and fir, so as to shelter the pond on three sides, and yet leave it Open to the soft south-western breezes, and to the afternoon sun. At the head of the combe wells up a clear spring, which sends a thread of water, trickling through a bed of osiers, into the upper end of the pond. A stout stone wall has been drawn across the combe from side to side, so as to dam up the stream and there is a gap in one corner, through which the over-flow finds its way, in a miniature cascade, down into the lower plantation. The pond's smooth surface is prettily diapered with the green leaves of many a water-plant, and with the sharp images of three famous beeches growing close to its edge: but to a naturalist's eye the old wall is the more charming object. Time has crumbled away the mortar near the water's edge, and made a thousand nooks and crannies which, densely clothed with algae, are the haunts of myriads of living creatures. If we approach the pond by the gamekeeper's path from the cottage above, we shall pass through the plantation, and come unseen right on to the corner of the wall; so that one quiet step will enable us to see at a glance its whole surface, without disturbing any living thing that may be there. Far off at the upper end a water hen is leading her little brood among the willows on the fallen trunk of an old beech, lying half-way...
